“They can smell our panic. But they can see we’re pretending it’s not there at all.”

How far would you go in pursuit of your truth?

The certainty of a child psychologist’s beliefs is threatened when she is stalked by the mother of one of her young clients. A desperate struggle for power ensues in which both women’s deepest convictions and most cherished principles are put to the test.

Through their explosive confrontation, Stephen Poliakoff exposes the assumptions and illusions upon which our culture thrives, and unveils the hidden worlds of fantasy, private resentments and dangerous obsessions which drive us all.

Sweet Panic is a compelling and provocative drama by one of Britain’s foremost writers and directors. His highly-acclaimed work for television and film includes Caught on a Train, Shooting the Past, Close My Eyes, The Lost Prince and Gideon’s Daughter.

Seat prices from £7.00 to £10.00
